HONGKONG, MAY 15TH, 889.

Our correspondent "Inquirer," whose letter appeared in yesterday's issue, asks us to state briefly the facts and arguments by which it has been shown that the purchasing value of silver in silver-using countries is as great now as it was before the great disturbance in the relative values of silver and goods in this country. There has never gold. Our correspondent says that if this were true, "silver would obviously keep pouring from the West into the East, because in the West gold, or commodities bought with the gold, can beyond doubt procure say one-third more silver than formerly, and this larger amount could, if silver is, as you say, of its old relative value with gold in the East in purchasing commodities, of course buy say one-third more in the East than could be bought by the original gold or commodities, and so would be more profitable to send." But we never said that silver was of its old relative value with gold ing active in the Eastern ball of the Union. in the East in purchasing commodities. What we meant to convey was that its value in relation to commodities themselves had remained practically undisturbed. When the dollar was at four shillings the purchasing power of five dollars and of a sovereign was the same; at the present time the five dollars will in China purchase as much as they did then: the sovereign or its equivalent wil of course purchase more. In the evidence given before the Currency Commission it was shown that while gold prices had everywhere fallen ailver prices had remained practically the same in silver using countries, and even in gold using countries there had been comparatively little change in the relative value of silver and the lead- this port. ing commodities. What had happened was not that silver had fallen in value but that gold had appreciated. In China and India the purchasing power of silver is indeed inoressing rather than diminishing, from which it would seem that the stocks and production of gold and silver combined have been surpassed by the growing commerce able from Shanghai as expressing his conof the world during the last quarter of a century; but the currency policy of England and Germany has secured almost the whole of the consequent appreciation to gold alone, leaving silver almost where it was. If, however, in connection with the proposed increase of official salaries in Hongkong on account of the fall in exchange, the point be raised that New York Commercial Advertiser, in an editorial all liability in this case and therefore the quasif the dollar has fallen in relation to the spreading wherever they can, and are doing no action was against Mr. Fenwick personally. sovereign, the sovereign has risen in relation good to anybody. The publication of a twenty-sen railway guide for Japan is (says the Japan Mail) a significant incident. It gives a more striking idea of the going to be no bombardment for anything progress this country has made than any statistical description could impart. The book is still small it is true. It contains only sixteen pages, and the tables do not all refer to separate lines, some of them being devoted to different sections of the same route. REMARKABLE ELECTRIC STORM AT SEA.

NEW YORK, 12th April Of the many remarkable experiences of steamships and sailing vessels during the recent hurricens off the coast, the most thrilling is told by Captain Barber of the British steamship Tropic, which arrived this morning from Progreso. The Tropic left Progress on March 31st, with a cargo of hemp. Good breezes prevailed until Hatteras was reached, Saturday, April 5th. At 8 o'clock that morning the wind increased to a gale. Two hours later it took the torm of an electric storm. Peals of thunder shook the stead ship and the lightning was dazzling and incoment. For nearly ten hours the electric storm lasted, and at nightfall the sea rose to such a mountainous height that oil was resorted to as the only means of riding what had now become a burricane of unprecedented fary. All night long the Tropic tossed about almost helpless with all hands on dock. At 5 o'clock Drury Lane, which holds 3,500 people. Sunday morning the most startling incident of the voyage occurred. Following a flash of lightning more brilliant than any which had preceded petroleum has been made at Yorketown, South erew, came an illumination-such as Captain Bar- the discoverer, Mr. A. Two hours after the meter fell the Tropic's engines gave out under the strain of buffeting with the waves and the steamer rolled over into the trough of the sea, where she lay helpless for nearly fort -eight hours, with sace breaking over h r fore and aft.
